QUALIFIED TUITION & FEES DEFINED

Qualified Tuition and Fees are amounts paid in 2022 for tuition and fees required for the student's enrollment at any accredited college, university, vocational school, or other post-secondary (after high school) institution. It does not matter whether the expenses were paid in cash, by check, by credit card, or with borrowed funds. Expenses paid on behalf of the student by someone other than the student (such as a relative) are treated as paid by the student. Also, expenses paid (or treated as paid) by a student who is claimed as a dependent on your tax return are treated as paid by you.

Qualified Tuition and Fees do not include amounts paid for:

- room and board, insurance, medical expenses, health fees, transportation, or other similar personal living expenses
- course-related books, supplies, or equipment, unless required by the institution as a condition of enrollment
- any course involving sports, games, or hobbies, unless such course is part of the student's degree program
